ONE year ago THE NATIONAL REPUBLIcan passed into the control of the present management. Within that period the paper has advanced in circulation and influence to its present vigorous and prosperous condition with a rapidity heretofore unprecedented in the history of time its circulation has nearly trobled, and its subscription list is now increasing more rapidly than at any other period.

The number of new advertisements for the month of December, 1881, was 642 possessed the Tribune in 1875. more than for the corresponding month of 1880.

There were 4,615 more advertisements in closed than during the year 1880.

The public may rest assured that THE REPUBLICAN will progress with the times and continue to be the liveliest, brightest, and best newspaper published at the ing the assassination of General National Capital.

A Mean Assault Upon the President. Under the head of "The President's Choice" the New York Tribune of Saturday says:

President Arthur has not yet burned his bridges He has done things that the people do not approve, but has not yet done more than they can forgive. He must wish to have a united party. Every con-ceivable aspiration that he can have must be sac-rified if he does not seek and end. He is a shrewd politician. He knows-no man living knows better-that the majority of the Republican party and the majority of the people are against the good things that he has done, have been slow to censure his disregard of the public will in matters of some importance—his robbing the political graveyard in the formation of a Cabinet, for instance. The feeling toward him is kindly, hopeful, and forbearing. But he will make a latal mistake if he thinks that the opinmake a final minister if the thinks that the opinions of the people have changed as to the vital matters at issue between different chements. Note that the people have changed as to the vital fiscale. But there will be seem that mony it he bupposes that they have become the party since he became the President. If there are to be rewards for the minority who were beaten, there must also be toleration for the malgority who were beaten, there must also be toleration for the malgority who were related to the minority and a triumpast at the vital of his new sphere, but, as one who greated the minority who were beaten, there must also be toleration for the malgority who were beaten, there must also be toleration for the malgority who were to the minority and the proposed the first that it is not in the constitution of the malgority will be in accord with him only when he recognizes, respects, and consulta the wishes of the majority. Splis recall nothing, and interpretation of the malgority will be in accord with only of the proposed flavor which mere demangement of the minority and the proposed flavor which mere demangement of the minority and the people is better. Not to that shiring and changes able breath of popular flavor which mere demangement of the proposed flavor which mere demangement o fons of the people have changed as to the vital matters at issue between different elements. Nowinciples; but President Arthur as a political leader would not. Public feeling would In that event be clearly and strongly expressed. The President would then learn, first, the full strength of the public hostilly to personalism and bossism— to the attempt to set up government of favored individuals, by favored individuals, for favored individuals, in place of that government of the people, by the people, and for the people in which

On the 9th of January, 1875, the New York Tribune, edited then, as now by Whitelaw Reid, published a letter in which the writer vehemently advocated the assassination of General Grant, then President of the United States. The sole offense for which Mr. Reid's correspondent thought the President ought to be murdered was that he had sustained the lawful government in Louisiana against a revolution the orevious September, and Mel had justified General Sheridan in preventing the revolutionists from seizing the Legislature in January. The Tribune was then the leading organ of the Ku-Klux organizations and bull-dosing ruffians of the South, as it had been for three years. Its editor was filled with rage and chagrin because the Republican party had gained strength by the Tribune's opposition to it.

and veneration for the President whom they elected, and whose splendid life, noble teachings, and herole death they will not forget.

The revolution against State authority in Louislana in 1875 was simply Bourbon lawlessness, and the President would have been liable to impeachment if he had withheld the aid of the Government for its suppression when regularly called upon therefor, as he was. The New York Tribune and its editor, Whitelaw Reid, represented at that time all that was devilish and depraved in American politics. Reid was playing the part of a Marat in seeking to arouse the murder-

In response to this londent treatment, what return have the Republican party and General Grant received? Future ages will hear with shame and sorrow the reply. His life is openly threatened by the assausins of the South, whom he has striven to

Nash gives the cartoon the following title: "ADVERTISING FOR AN ASSASSIN OF THE PRESIDENT of the United States.' Following is the assassination letter:

[From the New York Wilsons January 9, 1875.] BAYONETS AND LEGISLATION. To the Editor of the Tribune:

Sir: Now that Kellogg proposes to decide who shall belong to the Louisiana Legislature, and is sacked by the United States army, might not PRESIDENT GRANT better decide who shall belong to the next Congress, and enforce his decisions by five or six regiments of United States troops, commanded by that truthful and just man GENERAL SHERIDAN, and remove all regularly elected mem-bers to make place for the Caseys or Dents? If he usists on fighting it out on this line some one WILL PLAY BRUTUS TO HIS CASSAR WITHOUT Washington journalism. During that PAIL, WHICH, BY THE WAY, WOULD BE A GREAT BLEWING TO THE COUNTRY. New York, January 7, 1875.

Thus did Harper's Weekly, Eugene Lawrence, and Thomas Nast bear witness to the murderons and ravenous spirit which

Was a President's assassination a virtue during Grant's term? Would Guiteau indeed have been a patriotic Brutus if he had shot President Grant in the back THE REPUBLICAN during the year just with a bull-dog pistol, as Whitelaw Reid with a bull-dog pistol, as Whitelaw Reid allowed "J. H. H." to advocate in his newspaper? Would such an act have been the "great blessing to the country" which the Tribune declared? If the letter had been successful in causing the assassination of General Grant the law would have convicted and hung Whitelaw Reid as an accessory to the number of the law of the l knows better—that the majority of the Republican party and the majority of the people are against the men and the policies wherewith his name has hitherto been associated. The American people does not often bend its will to the preterences of one man. Stubborn pertinacity on his part in those points wherein his past has not been approved by the people can only cause discord in the party, evil in the country, and the final defeat of the President and his friends. Only by wise medication and judicious yielding can be bring the party into a cord. The people are not personally hostile to President Arthur. They appreciate his bearing after the assessination. They see the extreme difficulty of his breciate his bearing after the assassination. the spot. There may be in this premather see the extreme difficulty of his position. They recognize with ready thanks representation of the Administration a recognition, by those above Reid, of the danger of waiting for the President to give cause for opposition.

The New Year. Reader, you heard a New Year's ser-

A Snob and an Impostor.

It is astonishing that the Tribune should be Mr. Blaine's organ. Blaine knows its editor and has never changed the opinion he had of him a few years ago. Mr. Reid was in Washington on a visit at that time, and spake in no complimentary terms of the planned knight. Mr. Reid said that he was a dishonest man, a hypocrite, selfish, inducere, a charitan, and the most peruicious inducere in American politics. Of course somebody specially carried this to Bisine, and the son of Maine called Reid pretty hard names in reply, one of them being snob and another impostor. Mr. Bhime also added that Reid should never set his face justide his d ors again and never exchange a word with him. Yet in less than three months Reid dired with the them Speaker of the House.—New York correspondence Springfield Republican.

Reconciliation.

Reconciliation.

General Shorman, when asked in Chicago the other day whether he believed the Alianta Exposition would help to reconcile the Southwith "other sections," answered, as reported by the Inter-Occur.
"It don't make any difference whether they are reconciled or not. The Almighty will take eare of the country, I suppose, and He will see to that. If the people of the South are not reconciled, I don't see that it can trouble anybody except themselves. They will have to obey the laws of the country just like the rest of us, and I don't understand that their likes or dislikes are regarded in the matter."

A gentleman tormerly a resident of this bity, and at one time connected with this paper, now a stock raiser of Texas, in a recent letter to a friend narrates that the other evening his Chinese cook came into the house in a perturbed condition, and with an oder of serious trouble about him.

While Boscoe Combling in private life is devoting binself strictly to the profession of the law, Busine expresses the purpose of devoting his private lefsure to looking after his immense railroad interests. That is the difference between the two men. Cankling retired from public life with nothing but what he had when he entered !!—his profession—while Blaine returns to private life burdened with the accumulation of public life, But then, Conkling has nover been bothered with Mulligan letters and the like.—Kaness City Timers.

To give additional force to the burning words of Mr. Lawrence, Thomas Nast gibbeted Whitelaw Reid in a cartoon, in which he represented that brazen-faced political mountebank as an Italian bravo, marching along the street with a great advertising board suspended from his neck upon which appears the letter published by Reid in the Tribune of January 9, demanding Grant's assassination. POSTMASTER-GENERAL HOWE.

In noticing the appointment of ex-Senator Howe, of Wisconsin, to succeed Mr. James, the writer thinks the press generally have done injustice to the new Cabinet Minister. President Arthur has shown thus far, in every act he has performed, an e-pecially good knowledge of men, and this without doubt will be his distinguishing trait in administering his event.

S. P. Rounds, Enq.—An Incident.

To the Editor of This Respirations:

I wish to take advantage of Mr. Rounds absence from the city to reale a little incident of the war of the rebellion. In May, 1861, Sterding P. Rounds was confined to his bouse by schales or scienter rhoundstem, at times nearly crazy with pain and with difficulty hobbling around his room of crutches. When the collating excitement was getting pretty near the point of "Inspiration" Mr. Rounds was carried out of his house, placed in his carriage, and driven to his type foundry. There he ordered all his hands down into his office, miked to them nearly an hour on what he considered every man's duty at that hour of the country's peril, and, with the big tears rolling down his cheeks, ended his remarks with, "Boys, I would like to have every one of you enlist, and your families shall not suffer." Twenty-six of the men put on their coats and within an hour were under contract to serve the Government "for three years or during the war," at a salary of $13 per month. The nich went to the front and Mr. Rounds kept his word in regard to their families. They were provided for, and his grocery buil for three years would have supplied a good-stack hole! but the public knew very little of H, as Mr. Rounds never advertised his good deeds. At the end of three years twenty of the men returned—six were laft sleeping in Teninessee and Massissippi—and they were all given places in the foundry at an advance over prices he was then paying, and I think some of them are still employed with him. He still has a tender feeling for the men who kept step to the mission of the Union, and if the President appoints him Public Printer he would not ignore section 1751. s. P.
